

Instruction to My Next-of-Kin After My Death

Before completing this document please read the following:

1. This is not a will. Do not leave any instructions for disposal of property or funds on this form.
2. You should acquaint your Executor or next-of-kin with your wishes. Ensure that this form is kept in a safe place, or lodge it with a solicitor.
3. Experience shows it is wise to make a will, even if you think you do not have much to leave. Making a will is a simple process; however do consider taking advice from a qualified source. If you die without making a will your possessions will be distributed according to the law of the land, even though this may be against your wishes.
